Dear Parent/Guardian,

The provisions of the Parents' Right to Know under the No Child Left Behind Act enacted by the U.S. Department of Education, requires school districts to provide parents with the right to know of the quality of their children's teachers.

Beginning with the 2002-2003 school year, school districts must notify All parents of children attending Title I schools that they can request information regarding their children's classroom teachers and professional staff providing educational services to their children. This includes, at a minimum, information on the completion of state requirements for licensure and certification, emergency and other provisional status, educational background, and paraprofessionals' qualifications.

If you have questions regarding this law, you can contact the administrative offices at the number listed above.

Sincerely,

Dr. Daphne Pugh
